9 Host City Information

Bogota City

Bogota, called officially "Bogota, the Capital District", abbreviated to "Bogotá, D. C". Is the capital of the Republic of Colombia and of the department of Cundinamarca. It is made up of 20 localities and is the epicenter of the political, economic, administrative, industrial, artistic, cultural, sporting and tourist attractions of the country.

Bogota is the third highest capital of South America (after La Paz and Quito), has an average of 2,625 meters above sea level. It is located in the center of Colombia, in the region known as the Sabana de Bogotá, which is part of the altiplano Cundiboyacense, located in the Eastern Cordillera of the Andes.

It has a length of 33 km from south to north, and 16 km from east to west, is home to the highest-ranking agencies of the executive branch (president of the republic), Legislative (Congress) and Judicial (Supreme Court of Justice, Constitutional Court, the State Council and the Superior Council of the Judiciary).

The airport of the city, El Dorado International Airport, named for the mythical Dorado, has the largest volume of cargo transported in Latin America, and is the second in number of people. Is the city of Colombia with the largest number of universities (114) and research centers, has a wide range of cultures represented in a number of museums, theaters and libraries, which has been awarded the recognition of the "Athens."

Climate

Due to its high altitude, Bogota has a cold climate of Mountain; due to its low latitude has a low thermal oscillation throughout the year. Temperatures regularly between 7 and 19°C, with an annual average of 13°C. Due to its location near the Equator, has only two seasons: rain and drought, precipitation is abundant from March to May and from October to November, coinciding nearly with the spring and fall equinox in the northern hemisphere.

Museums and galleries

The city offers 58 museums and close to 70 art galleries, among which the National Museum of Colombia, whose acquis is divided into four collections: art, history, archeology and ethnography, and the Gold Museum, with 35,000 pieces of gold and tumbaga, in addition to 30 thousand objects in ceramic, stone and textiles, represents the largest collection of pre-Hispanic gold in the world.

Among the scientific museums are the Archeological Museum - Casa del Marqués de San Jorge, who has about 30,000 pieces of pre-Colombian art, Instituto de Ciencias Naturales (UN), one of the four largest museums of natural sciences in Latin America and the Geological Museum has a collection of Ingeominas specializing in Geology and Paleontology.

Bogotá also has historical museums like the Casa Museo Jorge Eliecer Gaitan, the Museum of Independence, the Quinta de Bolívar and the Casa Museo Francisco José de Caldas, as well as the headquarters of Maloka that attract a considerable number of visitors, especially among children. These centers were added several new museums like the Art Deco and the Museum of Bogotá.

Tourism

Bogota is known as an international tourist destination, to occupy the post 21 of 53 chosen, according to the New York Times. It is the main destination for foreigners who visit Colombia, with 52% of international visitors.

Important tourist places of Bogotá are the Cerro de Monserrate, the José Celestino Mutis Botanical Garden, the Gold Museum, the Quinta de Bolívar, the National Observatory, the Planetarium of Bogotá, Maloka, the mirador de la Torre Colpatria as well as the Mirador de La Calera, the monument of Flags to the Americas (next to the Flags of TransMilenio) and La Candelaria, a town which is a UNESCO World Heritage and Cultural Interest of National Character.
