Host City

About Acapulco

Acapulco is a city in Mexico, a resort, and port on the Pacific Ocean located in the state of Guerrero. Acapulco lies about 385 km south of Mexico City.

The name Acapulco is of Nahuatl origin and means "Place where the reeds were destroyed", according to tradition.

The main city and busiest resort area stretch some 12km east to west around Acapulco Bay, curved like a giant seashell. Pristine beaches and smaller resorts fan out either side of the bay, from Pie de la Cuesta in the north to Playa Diamante to the south.

The climate in Acapulco mostly ranges from 25 to 32°C in the month of May. The predominant climate is warm humid.
